About the course

The NEBOSH Health and Safety at Work Award is an ideal first step into health and safety and is perfect for supervisors, safety representatives and anyone transitioning into a management role.

By applying the knowledge and skills gained from the NEBOSH Health and Safety at Work qualification, you will be able to contribute to maintaining a safe and healthy workplace.

Learners gain knowledge and practical skills that enable:

- The understanding why health and safety needs to be managed, ensuring effective processes are in place
- The ability to inspect the workplace, recognising hazards, evaluating risk and recommending control measures
- The understanding of why accidents happen and how to investigate them.

Course syllabus

The course comprises two central units that will cover critical topics such as health and safety responsibilities and fundamental control measures to preserve a safe working environment.

Units

- Why and how you manage health and safety
- Dealing with common workplace hazards
- Stopping incidents and ill-health before they happen
- Learning from incidents.

Assessment

This course is assessed with a workplace health and safety review for Unit HSA1. This will include:

- Considering how health and safety is managed, and how it could be done better
- Identifying health and safety issues, how they are controlled and if the risk can be reduced
- Selecting the most important issue for improvement.

This assessment must be carried out at your own workplace, or at a suitable premises if this is not possible.
